BELLINGHAM – The Northwest Washington Farm to Table Trade Meeting will be held this year in Bellingham on Tuesday, Feb. 22. The event brings together local buyers and producers to connect and explore market opportunities, and includes an educational workshop to share and discuss solutions to barriers within the local food system.

Anyone who has a stake in the NW Washington food economy is welcome to attend, including local farmers, ranchers, chefs, distributors, restaurateurs, processors, caterers and grocers.

The event is hosted by Sustainable Connections, Cascade Harvest Coalition, and Northwest Agriculture Business Center. It will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Saint Joseph Peace Health Hospital Conference Center, Bellingham. Tickets are $10 each, and include a light lunch and a tasting of Whatcom and Skagit wines.
